Open Thurs.15.00-21.00, Sat. and Sun. 10.00-19.00. Admission €7,50/10. To avoid any crowd, booking is mandatory: please show up on time.

<https://museoscienza.vivaticket.com/must/opentickets.html>

Your body temperature will be measured before entering the museum. If it exceeds 37.5°C you will not be allowed to access the Museum.

During the visit you will be asked to always wear a mask and keep a distance of at least 2 meters between you and all other visitors and staff. At the entrance and inside the museum you will find sanitizing gel dispensers. All visitors must sanitize their hands before touching interactive installations and touchscreens within the exhibitions.

For safety reasons, lockers are not available at this time and it is forbidden to eat and drink within the museum premises. We are sorry for the inconvenience.

Some permanent exhibitions: <https://www.museoscienza.org/en/visiting>

Leonardo da Vinci Galleries the world's largest exhibition dedicated to Leonardo as engineer, humanist and nature explorer. A spectacular setting accompanies you on a journey that, starting from the Florence of the fifteenth century, traces the training of Da Vinci and the influence of Tuscan engineers up to his stay in the Milan of the Sforza. A journey through the art of war, work and production, flight, waterways and architecture that ends with a perspective on Da Vinci's influence on Lombard Renaissance painting and an immersive installation dedicated to drawings of the last period of Da Vinci's activity. More than 1,300 square meters and 170 historical models, works of art, antique volumes and installations that bring the exhibition's narrative to life.

<https://www.museoscienza.org/en/leonardo/galleries>

Moon rock. A piece of the Goodwill Rock, collected in 1972 by the astronauts of the Apollo 17, the last human mission on the Moon. It is a small rock with an immense value, maybe the most relevant symbol of humanity's passion for exploration and for scientific and technological challenges. It was donated in 1973 by the American President Richard Nixon to the Italian Republic and later entrusted to the Museum. By studying it, scientists made hypothesis on the origin and nature of the Moon and caught a glimpse of the Solar System's first instants.

<https://www.museoscienza.org/en/collection/objects/moon-rock>

Vega launcher. The 1:1 scale model of the first Vega (VV01), a vector developed by the European Space Agency (ESA). About 30 meters high and with a mass of 137 tons, it is composed of 4 stages that can transport and release satellites of up to 2.000 kilograms. Unlike most small launchers, it can carry multiple loads into Space, placing them on different orbits. Vega was developed thanks to a collaboration between Italy, France, Belgium, Spain, the Netherlands, Switzerland and Sweden. The first launch took place on February 13, 2012.

<https://www.museoscienza.org/en/collection/objects/vega-launcher>

Extreme. In partnership with CERN (European Organization for Nuclear Research) and INFN (National Institute of Nuclear Physics,) is a fascinating research area that explores matter in its most infinitesimal components. The exhibition reveals what goes on inside the laboratories of two of the largest research institutions that carry out experiments related to particle physics.

<https://www.museoscienza.org/en/offer/permanent-exhibitions/particle-physics>

Prada – Luna Rossa. Inside the Aero-Naval Pavillion, the rigid wing catamaran AC72 which was a finalist in the selection regattas for the 34th America's Cup challenge (San Francisco 2013).

Giovanni V. Schiaparelli's Merz-Repsold Telescope. In 1886 – when it came to service at the Brera Astronomical Observatory in Milan – the Merz-Repsold telescope was the largest in Italy and one of the most important in the world. With this tool, Schiaparelli conducted his studies on Mars. He observed some structures – shaped like channels – on the surface of the planet. This ignited a debate on their very existence as well as on the possibility of living extra-terrestrial life on Mars.

Conte Biancamano ocean liner. Diving into history: the prestigious launch in 1925 in Scotland, the first journey on the Genoa-Naples-New York route, the voyages to South America and the Far East, the transport of U.S. troops during World War II, and the last trips. Today's survivors are the ballroom and the bridge with the original equipment and some cabins, acquired by the Museum in the 1960s during the disarmament.

Triennale

Viale Alemagna 6 • M1/2 Cadorna

Open: Tues. – Fri. 17.00 – 20.30, Sat. – Sun. 11.30 – 20.30. Mon closed. Admission free.

<https://www.triennale.org/en/visit/plan-your-visit/>

The Terrazza Triennale restaurant. Open 12.00 – 01.00, an inn with a view, offering top quality cuisine and warm, friendly service. Admission free.

Caffè Giardino. Open Tues. – Fri. 17.00 / 24.00; Sat. – Sun. 11.30 – 24.00; a delightful wooden veranda with a large banqueting table. Perfect for an aperitif or an outdoor lunch, with salads, gastronomic focaccias and quintessentially Italian cirasci (rice cooked with Japanese technique but seasoned with Mediterranean taste). Admission free.

This venue is itself an interesting piece of architecture, designed by Giovanni Muzio and built in 1931-33 specifically for exhibitions. The Torre Branca nearby offers the chance to see Milan from about 100 metres up, at certain times of day and in the evening.

Permanent exhibition. "Museo del Design Italiano" a selection of the most iconic and representative pieces of Italian design, part of the 1,600 objects in the Triennale Collection. A selection by a scientific committee among the leading figures of Italian design and architecture, such as Marcello Neri, Gio Ponti, Ettore Sottsass, Lucio Colletti, Gianfranco Ferré, Zanuso, Bellini.

Pinacoteca Ambrosiana

Piazza Pio XI° 2 • M1/3 Duomo

Open: Tues-Sun 08.30-19. Mon closed. Admission €10/20.

General info: <https://www.ambrosiana.it/en/>

Tickets: <https://www.ambrosiana.it/en/info/#biglietti>

As well as the permanent exhibitions:

The famous preparatory cardboard for the School of Athens by Raffaello, after four years of restoration, is back in a new layout inside room 5 of the Picture Gallery. In this regard the architect Stefano Boeri stated: "In the room that hosts the Cartoon of Raphael, we strongly wanted the presence of a huge solid wooden table, created by Riva 1920 from a 150 years old oak, because we believed that the space of contemplation of the extraordinary drawing that represents a School could become a School itself. The big didactic table turns the Sala V of Pinacoteca Ambrosiana into a silent and powerful School where the visitor can both admire the Cartoon and read and learn in historical books that deal in detail with its history, origin and deep meaning". The video in English at the following link: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Na0JoPvLiug>

For the safety of this painting the largest single-door window in the world has been set up.

Structural engineers, mechanical engineers and kinematics experts have been called upon to resolve some critical issues, such as stability, safety, air and humidity resistance.

Permanent exhibition. Mineralogy, Paleontology, Natural history of man, Invertebrate zoology, Vertebrate Zoology.

This is the biggest museum in Italy and boasts 23 halls with about 700 window cases. Make sure to pay a visit to the fauna and flora gallery: its 83 dioramas, 6 of which are brand new, have been created precisely for the protection of the species on display, some of which are already on the brink of extinction.

Museo Poldi Pezzoli

Via Alessandro Manzoni 12 • M3 Montenapoleone.

Open in compliance with the health regulations for the Corona Virus:

from Mon. 20 July to Sun. 30 August, from 14.30 to 18.00.

Your body temperature will be measured before entering the museum. If it exceeds 37.5°C you will not be allowed to access the Museum.

During the visit you will be asked to always wear a mask and keep a distance of at least 2 meters between you and all other visitors and staff.

Admission €7

Thanks to the "Friends of the Poldi Pezzoli Museum Association", our first 3000 visitors will be admitted to the Museum paying €1 only. Furthermore, by presenting our ticket, they can take advantage of a special 20% discount on the full entrance ticket (individual rates) to the museums and gardens of Terre Borromeo on Lake Maggiore: Isola Bella, Isola Madre, Pallavicino Park in Stresa (VB) and Rocca di Angera (VA).

New permanent exhibition. On the occasion of the opening of three new rooms, three collections are being exhibited that have never been shown to the public before. In the first room, an exceptional collection of watches from the 16th to the 20th centuries, similar to those of the Louvre in Paris, of the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York and of the Musée d'Art et d'Histoire in Geneva. In the second room a collection of archaeological finds, a significant ceramic nucleus of IV-III century BC. In the third room, 18th century china artifacts by European manufacturers. The works made in Meissen are outstanding.

Recent acquisitions. The archaeological section, with about two hundred finds collected by the Poldi Pezzoli family, has been recently enriched by two new acquisitions. One of them is a male head in metal from the Greek Roman period, which documents the collecting trends of the nineteenth century European scene which then continued on to the twentieth century.

Until 28 September. "Memos. About fashion in this millennium" in collaboration with the National Chamber of Fashion. Curated by Maria Luisa Frisa, with exhibition making by Judith Clark, it will be an opportunity to reflect on contemporary fashion, its qualities and its attributes, starting from the American lessons by Italo Calvino.
